Mount Camel Health System

The Mount Camel Health System history dates back to 1885, with the opening of the Hawkes Hospital of Mount Carmel. Mount Camel Health System Library (MCHSL) services were established in 2001. At that time the library primarily provided informational services to professional medical staff and student nurses. Known in the beginning as The Mother M. Constantine Memorial Library, it was named in honor of Mother M. Constantine (Ryan). CSC Library services today mirror 93 years of continuous expansion and evolution of knowledge and informational support to Mount Camel Health System constituents.

Today’s MCHSL consists of the following three integral business operations: The Health Sciences Library, Consumer Health Library, and Corporate Library Support. This unique organizational setting within a large corporate environment (Trinity Health/Catholic Health Initiatives, Catholic Health Initiatives, RCO, Ohio Private Academic Libraries Consortium, and OhioLINK) has enabled MCHSL to extend health information services to its communities, and recently to corporate libraries across the United States. This business operation model defines MCHSL as wearing multiple hats: Corporate, Special, Medical, Academic, and Public. The diversity of services, clients, projects, and engagements make this library one-of-a-kind.

I commonly describe the nine colleagues that work together as a team of “shining stars” committed to innovation, excellence, and continuous growth and change of health sciences librarianship. Driven by visionary leadership and intrinsic motivation, MCHL is a fine example of how libraries and librarians have embraced change and taken advantage of opportunities that society created and demands.

The creation of the Consumer Health Library confirms our dedication to service. In 2011, with health reform on the horizon, changing relationships and communication between patients and medical staff, market pressure on health prevention and wellness, fast-paced technology development, and continuing growth of information, the Interlibrary Loan (ILL) workshops focused on community health. This service has evolved from a basic informational support service to a local health clinic to complement services on many different levels by providing consumer health and patient health information.

Partnering with the Hospital Health Sciences Library has led to an initiative in organizing, cataloging, and making information, available virtually and in a comprehensive way to the Mount Carmel Health System Library website. This includes patient education materials. Organizing these materials has enabled professional medical staff to easily locate, access, and make information available to patients at the time of their diagnosis, hospital stay, and during their rehabilitation and hospital discharge. By developing internal partnerships, opportunities to create, establish, and provide Patient Library services within the hospital has resulted in daily visits to patient. We provide them with leisure reading materials during their stay in the hospital (books, magazines, movies) and our professional service of providing health information tailored to their interests, needs and demands.

Having the opportunity to relocate and expand the Consumer Health Library space, a business operation was re-visited in 2013 and re-assessed. CHL has become an integral part of the CHRC architectural team to design the space. A long time vision was finally realized and a modern state-of-the-art shelf-less

CHL was created with the support of Mount Carmel Foundation and utilizing grant opportunities. CHL has the latest portable technology that can also be used to visit community members and provide opportunities to educate and connect clients by visiting them in their own environments and locations. Emphasis is also placed on community needs, literacy level, and other key elements of educational support. In one example, CHL has resulted in establishing and engaging the local community in technology education, consumer health information education, and partnerships with the local not-for-profit Lower Lights Christian Health Center Clinic and organizing monthly visits to Hawthorn Village Senior Apartment Homes providing health information services and basic health screenings.

Moreover, being an integral part of CHRC and utilizing its specially designed space and classroom settings, CHL has continued its third year initiative to be the primary provider of consumer health education for all librarians in the State of Ohio and Midwestern region. This was done through establishing a partnership with the National Library of Medicine (NLM) Great Midwestern Region Network located in Chicago, IL. During the last two years, CHL has organized five free consumer health educational sessions. By organizing and hosting NLM instructors to teach eight NLM designed consumer health education classes, CHL has created the opportunity for all librarians to gain certification as a NLM Consumer Health Information Specialist. Furthermore, collaborative efforts with Mount Carmel CHRC located at the MCHS West Hospital Campus created a very important opportunity for CHL to expand the scope of services and promote health prevention and wellness.

This story continues... CHL services are taking important measures in creating Consumer Health Information Centers (CHIC) on other MCHS hospital campuses and looking forward to developing partnerships with local libraries and education centers. For example, one such center was established at MCHS St. Ann’s Hospital. Current efforts will lead to connecting and engaging the community in this area in order to provide health information services and promote health prevention and wellness. CHL’s goal is to establish CHICs at all MCHS operating locations and provide CHL services engaging local communities and providing education and informational health and wellness support to the entire community in addition to the focus on Franklin and the communities around Mount Carmel West.

The Medical Library Association Guide to Provide Consumer and Patient Health Information, published in 2014, has honored our efforts in establishing, maintaining and promoting the Health Sciences Librarianship gains its momentum and potential! Redesigning our business operation by establishing Consumer Health Services to our communities, we have re-thought, re-invented and re-established ourselves as integral parts of our nation’s social and economic milieu adding value to our educational, health and informational roles in society.

Continuous engagement and presence of the CHL and its librarians at local festivals and health fairs (Columbus International Festival, Pride Festival, Fanj m a Columbus local elementary and high school health fairs, etc.) creates new opportunities to offer our services and support and community engagement to promote and market health prevention and wellness activities.
